

firearms dealers (Count 1), possession of firearm after felony conviction (Count 2), false statement to firearms dealers (Count 3), and possession of firearm after felony conviction (Count 4). He had been convicted pursuant to a jury's verdicts on February 6, 1996. Earlier, the United States had filed a sentencing enhancement notification on October 3, 1995.

The United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit affirmed the petitioner's convictions and sentence, and the Supreme Court of the United States denied discretionary appellate review. United States v. Bryant Keith Chisholm, 110 F.3d 61 [Table], 1997 U.S.App. LEXIS® 6526, 1997 WESTLAW® 161703 (4th Cir., April 8, 1997), cert. denied, Chisholm v. United States, 522 U.S. 879, 139 L.Ed.2d 140, 118 S.Ct. 203, 1997 U.S. LEXIS® 5605 (1997). The petitioner states that he filed a motion to vacate under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 in the United States District Court for the Middle District of North Carolina. According to the petitioner, his motion to vacate under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 was “[d]enied.”

In the § 2241 petition in the case at bar, the petitioner raises one (1) ground: “Petitioner is ‘actually innocent’ of being an Armed Career Criminal and the Sentencing Court abused its discretion by misapplying the Sentencing Guidelines in this case.” The petitioner contends that these claims were not presented on direct appeal “due to counsel’s ineffectiveness, and they were not presented in a § 2255 because the claims presented are not cognizable in a § 2255, which renders § 2255 inadequate or ineffective to test the legality of Petitioner’s detention.” (Petition, at page 8).

The petitioner does not cite United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220, 160 L.Ed.2d 621, 125 S.Ct. 738, 2005 U.S. LEXIS® 628 (2005); Blakely v. Washington, 542 U.S. 296, 159 L.Ed.2d 403, 124 S.Ct. 2531, 2004 U.S. LEXIS® 4573 (2004); and Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466, 147 L.Ed.2d 435, 120 S.Ct. 2348, 2362-2363, 2000 U.S. LEXIS® 4304 (2000). Instead, the petitioner contends that the district court in North Carolina abused its discretion by “simply adopting the government’s position on the Armed Career Criminal enhancement without reading and verifying the information in the Presentence Investigation Report (PSI).” (Petitioner’s memorandum [Entry No. 1-2], at page 4).

Discussion

Under established local procedure in this judicial district, a careful review has been made of the pro se petition and supporting memorandum pursuant to the procedural provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 1915, the Anti-Terrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (“AEDPA”), and other habeas corpus statutes.¹ The review has been conducted in light of the following precedents: Denton v. Hernandez, 504 U.S. 25, 118 L.Ed.2d 340, 112 S.Ct. 1728, 1992 U.S. LEXIS® 2689 (1992); Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 324-325, 1989 U.S. LEXIS® 2231 (1989); Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519 (1972); Nasim v. Warden, Maryland House of Correction, 64 F.3d 951, 1995 U.S.App. LEXIS® 26108 (4th Cir. 1995)(en banc), cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1177, 134 L.Ed.2d 219, 116 S.Ct. 1273, 1996 U.S. LEXIS® 1844 (1996); Todd v. Baskerville, 712 F.2d 70 (4th Cir. 1983); and Boyce v. Alizaduh, 595 F.2d 948 (4th Cir. 1979)(recognizing the district court’s authority to conduct an initial screening of a pro se filing);² Loe v. Armistead, 582 F.2d 1291 (4th Cir. 1978), cert. denied, Moffitt v. Loe, 446 U.S. 928 (1980); and Gordon v. Leeke, 574 F.2d 1147, 1151 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, Leeke v. Gordon, 439 U.S. 970 (1978). The petitioner is a pro se litigant, and thus his pleadings are accorded liberal ¹Pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(B) and Local Civil Rule 73.02, the undersigned is authorized to review such complaints for relief and submit findings and recommendations to the District Court.

²Boyce has been held by some authorities to have been abrogated in part, on other grounds, by Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319 (1989)(insofar as Neitzke establishes that a complaint that fails to state a claim, under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), does not by definition merit sua sponte dismissal under 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B)(i) [formerly 28 U.S.C. § 1915(d)], as “frivolous”).

construction. See Hughes v. Rowe, 449 U.S. 5, 9-10 & n. 7 (1980)(per curiam); and Cruz v. Beto, 405 U.S. 319 (1972). When a federal court is evaluating a pro se complaint, petition, or pleading, the plaintiff's or petitioner's allegations are assumed to be true. Fine v. City of New York, 529 F.2d 70, 74 (2nd Cir. 1975). Even under this less stringent standard, the § 2241 petition, which raises claims under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, is subject to summary dismissal. The requirement of liberal construction does not mean that the court can ignore a clear failure in the pleading to allege facts which set forth a claim currently cognizable in a federal district court. Weller v. Department of Social Services, 901 F.2d 387, 1990 U.S.App. LEXIS® 6120 (4th Cir. 1990).

Prior to enactment of 28 U.S.C. § 2255, the only way a federal prisoner could collaterally attack a federal conviction was through a petition for a writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2241. See Triestman v. United States, 124 F.3d 361, 373, 1997 U.S.App. LEXIS® 22752 (2nd Cir. 1997). In 1948, Congress enacted § 2255 primarily to serve as a more efficient and convenient substitute for the traditional habeas corpus remedy. See In re Dorsainvil, 119 F.3d 245, 249, 1997 U.S.App. LEXIS® 18963 (3rd Cir. 1997)(collecting cases).

"[A] prisoner who challenges his federal conviction or sentence cannot use the federal habeas corpus statute at all but instead must proceed under 28 U.S.C. § 2255." Waletzki v. Keohane, 13 F.3d 1079, 1080, 1994 U.S.App. LEXIS® 159 (7th Cir.1994). Since the petitioner is seeking relief from his sentence entered in the United States District Court for the Middle District of North Carolina, the relief requested by the petitioner in the above-captioned matter is available, if at all, under 28 U.S.C. § 2255. See United States v. Morehead, 2000 U.S.Dist. LEXIS® 17611, 2000 WESTLAW® 1788398 (N.D.Ill., December 4, 2000):

Notwithstanding Bennett captioning this pleading under Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 12(b)(2), this court must construe it as a motion attacking his sentence under 28 U.S.C. § 2255. Regardless of how a defendant captions a pleading, "any post-judgment motion in a criminal proceeding that fits the description of § 2255 ¶ 1 is a motion under § 2255...." United States v. Evans, 224 F.3d 670, 672 (7th Cir. 2000). In the pleading at bar, Bennett argues that the court did not have jurisdiction over his criminal case, which is one of the bases for relief under § 2255 ¶ 1. Therefore, this court must construe this motion as a § 2255 motion.

United States v. Morehead, supra.

The United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit has reached a similar conclusion:

* * * Many decisions in this circuit hold that substance controls over the caption.

Any motion filed in the district court that imposed the sentence, and substantively within the scope of § 2255 ¶ 1, is a motion under § 2255, no matter what title the prisoner plasters on the cover. See, e.g., Ramunno v. United States, 264 F.3d 723 (7th Cir.2001). Call it a motion for a new trial, arrest of judgment, mandamus, prohibition, coram nobis, coram vobis, audita querela, certiorari, capias, habeas corpus, ejectment, quare impedit, bill of review, writ of error, or an application for a Get-Out-of-Jail Card; the name makes no difference. It is substance that controls. See Thurman v. Gramley, 97 F.3d 185, 186-87 (7th Cir.1996).

Melton v. United States, 359 F.3d 855, 857 (7th Cir.2004) (emphasis in original). Lloyd's motion advanced the kind of arguments and sought the kind of relief covered by § 2255 ¶ 1. It therefore was a collateral attack, and because we had not granted permission for its commencement the district court was obliged to dismiss it for lack of jurisdiction. Although a miscaptioned initial collateral attack does not count for purposes of § 2244(b) and § 2255 ¶ 8 unless the district judge alerts the prisoner that it will use up the one allowed as of right, see Castro v. United States, 540 U.S. 375, 124 S.Ct. 786, 157 L.Ed.2d 778 (2003), all later collateral attacks must be seen for what they are. A captioning error in a successive collateral proceeding cannot cost the prisoner any legal entitlement, so Castro's warn-and-allow-withdrawal approach does not apply. See Melton, 359 F.3d at 857.

United States v. Lloyd, 398 F.3d 978, 979-980, 2005 U.S.App. LEXIS® 3429 (7th Cir. 2005). See also United States v. Winestock, 340 F.3d 200, 2003 U.S.App. LEXIS® 7941 (4th Cir. 2003), cert. denied, Winestock v. United States, 157 L.Ed.2d 395, 124 S.Ct. 496, 2003 U.S. LEXIS® 7906 (2003).

The petitioner's characterization of his ground as an abuse of discretion appears to be a circuitous means of raising claims under United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220, 160 L.Ed.2d 621, 125 S.Ct. 738, 2005 U.S. LEXIS® 628 (2005); Blakely v. Washington, 542 U.S. 296, 159 L.Ed.2d 403, 124 S.Ct. 2531, 2004 U.S. LEXIS® 4573 (2004); and Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466, 147 L.Ed.2d 435, 120 S.Ct. 2348, 2362-2363, 2000 U.S. LEXIS® 4304 (2000), because the petitioner contends that the district court in North Carolina "misapplied" the Sentencing Guidelines. Even so, the Supreme Court of the United States and the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit have not declared Blakely or Booker to be retroactive to cases on collateral review.³ Collateral review in federal court includes habeas corpus actions under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, 28 U.S.C. § 2241, and 28 U.S.C. § 2254.⁴ Since the United States Supreme Court did not expressly hold that its decision in Booker is retroactive, the above-captioned case is controlled by In Re Vial, 115 F.3d 1192, 1194-1198, 1997 U.S.App. LEXIS® 14166 (4th Cir. 1997)(en banc), where the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit ruled that a state or federal prisoner must seek relief from the applicable Court of Appeals to file a successive petition under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 or 28 U.S.C. § 2255. In Vial, the Court of Appeals ruled that a state or federal prisoner hoping to benefit from a recent United States Supreme Court decision which allegedly resulted in a change of law affecting his conviction or sentence must seek relief from the applicable Court of Appeals to file a successive petition under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 or 28 U.S.C. § 2255. The Court in Vial declined to apply retroactively a new case raised by the petitioner in his post-conviction relief motion because: (1) the Court of Appeals determined that the case did not create new “constitutional” law; and (2) in any event, the opinion the petitioner sought to apply in collaterally attacking his conviction had not been explicitly made retroactive to cases for post-conviction relief by the United States Supreme Court. 115 F.3d at 1196-1197. Moreover, the United States Court of Appeals of the Fourth Circuit has expressly held that Booker is not retroactive. United States v. Morris, 429 F.3d 65, 67-72, 2005 U.S.App. LEXIS® 23991 (4th Cir. 2005), which arose in the District of South Carolina.

³The Supreme Court of the United States has granted certiorari in a case that may resolve the retroactivity of Blakely and Booker. See Burton v. Waddington, 165 L.Ed.2d 278, 126 S.Ct. 2352, 2006 U.S. LEXIS® 4351 (U.S., June 5, 2006).

⁴A "collateral attack" upon a state or federal conviction usually refers to an application for post-conviction relief, a petition for a writ of habeas corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 or under 28 U.S.C. § 2241, or a motion or action brought under 28 U.S.C. § 2255. The Supreme Court of the United States has pointed out that a prisoner who collaterally attacks his or her conviction has a higher hurdle to overcome in alleging errors during his or her trial (or guilty plea proceeding) than he or she confronts in a direct appeal. See Engle v. Isaac, 456 U.S. 107, 134-135 (1982).

The petitioner's attention is directed to the decisions of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit in United States v. Sanders, 247 F.3d 139, 2001 U.S.App. LEXIS® 6258 (4th Cir. 2001), cert. denied, Sanders v. United States, 534 U.S. 1042, 151 L.Ed.2d 445, 122 S.Ct. 573, 2001 U.S. LEXIS® 10543 (2001); and San-Miguel v. Dove, 291 F.3d 257, 2002 U.S.App. LEXIS® 9581 (4th Cir. 2002), cert. denied, San-Miguel v. Dove, 537 U.S. 938, 154 L.Ed.2d 242, 123 S.Ct. 46, 2002 U.S. LEXIS® 7311 (2002), and cert. denied, Young v. Conley, 537 U.S. 938, 123 S.Ct. 46, 2002 U.S. LEXIS® 7310 (2002), both of which raised claims under Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466, 147 L.Ed.2d 435, 120 S.Ct. 2348, 2362-2363, 2000 U.S. LEXIS® 4304 (2000). In Sanders, the Court of Appeals held that the new rule in Apprendi v. New Jersey was not applicable to cases on collateral review. In San-Miguel, the Court of Appeals upheld this court's summary dismissal of a § 2241 action raising Apprendi claims. Since the claims raised by the petitioner relate to his sentence, the petitioner's claims in the above-captioned case are not cognizable under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 under the holdings in San Miguel and Sanders.

The fact that the petitioner may be precluded from raising his "abuse of discretion" issues in a § 2255 petition does not render a § 2255 petition inadequate or ineffective. Phillips v. Jeter, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS® 2939, 2005 WESTLAW® 465160, *1-*2 (N.D. Texas, February 25, 2005) (magistrate judge's Report and Recommendation). Compare In Re Vial, supra, with United States v. Collins, 401 F.3d 212, 220-222, 2005 U.S. App. LEXIS® 3503 (4th Cir. 2005) (direct appeal; sentences vacated and case remanded because of Blakely and Booker violations). Cf. also United States v. Winestock, supra; and Rhodes v. Houston, 258 F. Supp. 546 (D. Neb. 1966).⁵

⁵The holding in United States v. Winestock is based on longstanding case law. This longstanding case was discussed by forty years ago by the United States District Court for the District of Nebraska in Rhodes v. Houston:

The invulnerability to a trial court's intrusion upon, or disregard of, a judgment or decree founded in, or supported by, an appellate mandate, is devoid of novelty. For example, in 1897, Mr. Justice Gray in In re Potts, 166 U.S. 263, 267, 268, 17 S.Ct. 520, 521, 522, 41 L.Ed. 994, wrote:

'When the merits of a case have been once decided by this court on appeal, the circuit court (by which name the trial court was then known) has no authority, without express leave of this court, to grant a new trial, a rehearing or a review, or to permit new defenses on the merits to be introduced by amendment of the answer. Ex parte Story, 12 Pet. 339 (9 L.Ed. 1108); Southard v. Russell, 16 How. 547, (14 L.Ed. 1052); Ex parte Dubuque & P.R. Co., 1 Wall. 69, (17 L.Ed. 514); Stewart v. Salamon, 97 U.S. 361, (24 L.Ed. 1044; Gaines v. Rugg, 148 U.S. 228, 13 S.Ct. 611, (37 L.Ed. 432). In this respect a motion for a new trial or a petition for a rehearing stands upon the same ground as a bill of review, as to which Mr. Justice Nelson, speaking for this court, in Southard v. Russell, above cited, said: 'Nor will a bill of review lie in the case of newlydiscovered evidence after the publication or decree below, where a decision has taken place on an appeal, unless the right is reserved in the decree of the appellate court, or permission be given on an application to that court directly for

Since the claims that the petitioner seeks to raise in the above-captioned case are cognizable, if at all, under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, the petitioner's available judicial remedy is to seek leave to file a successive petition from the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. Before the petitioner attempts to file another petition regarding his sentence under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, the petitioner must seek and obtain leave (i.e., written permission) from the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. The petitioner can obtain the necessary form for doing so from the Clerk's Office of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit in Richmond, Virginia. The five-page form is entitled "Motion for Authorization to File Successive Application under 28 U.S.C. § 2244." (B) LIMITS ON SECOND OR SUCCESSIVE APPLICATIONS. —Section 2244(b) of title 28, UNITED STATES CODE, is amended to read as follows:

"(B)(1) A claim presented in a second or successive habeas corpus application under section 2254 that was presented in a prior application shall be dismissed.

"(2) A claim presented in a second or successive habeas corpus application under section 2254 that was not presented in a prior application shall be dismissed unless—

"(A) the applicant shows that the claim relies on a new rule of constitutional law, made retroactive to cases on collateral review by the Supreme Court, that was previously unavailable; or

"(ii) the facts underlying the claim, if proven and viewed in light of the evidence as a whole, would be sufficient to establish by clear and convincing evidence that, but for constitutional error, no reasonable factfinder would have found the applicant guilty of the underlying offense.

"(3)(A) Before a second or successive application permitted by this section is filed in the district court, the applicant shall move in the appropriate court of appeals for an order authorizing the district court to consider the application.

"(B) A motion in the court of appeals for an order authorizing the district court to consider a second or successive application shall be determined by a three-judge panel of the court of appeals.

Recommendation

Accordingly, it is recommended that the § 2241 petition be dismissed without prejudice and without requiring the respondent to file a return. See Allen v. United States Magistrate Judge

Notice of Right to File Objections to Magistrate Judge's "Report and Recommendation"

The Serious Consequences of a Failure to Do So

The petitioner is hereby notified that any objections to the attached Report and Recommendation (or Order and Recommendation) must be filed within ten (10) days of the date of service. 28 U.S.C. § 636 and Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b). The time calculation of this ten-day period excludes weekends and holidays and provides for an additional three days for filing by mail. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6. A magistrate judge makes only a recommendation, and the authority to make a final determination in this case rests with the United States District Judge. See Mathews v. Weber, 423 U.S. 261, 270-271 (1976); and Estrada v. Witkowski, 816 F. Supp. 408, 410, 1993 U.S. Dist. LEXIS® 3411 (D.S.C. 1993).

During the ten-day period for filing objections, but not thereafter, a party must file with the Clerk of Court specific, written objections to the Report and Recommendation, if he or she wishes the United States District Judge to consider any objections. Any written objections must specifically identify the portions of the Report and Recommendation to which objections are made and the basis for such objections. See Keeler v. Pea, 782 F. Supp. 42, 43-44, 1992 U.S. Dist. LEXIS® 8250 (D.S.C. 1992); and Oliverson v. West Valley City, 875 F. Supp. 1465, 1467, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS® 776 (D.Utah 1995). Failure to file specific, written objections shall constitute a waiver of a party's right to further judicial review, including appellate review, if the recommendation is accepted by the United States District Judge. See United States v. Schronce, 727 F.2d 91, 94 & n. 4 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, Schronce v. United States, 467 U.S. 1208 (1984); and Wright v. Collins, 766 F.2d 841, 845-847 & nn. 1-3 (4th Cir. 1985). Moreover, if a party files specific objections to a portion of a magistrate judge's Report and Recommendation, but does not file specific objections to other portions of the Report and Recommendation, that party waives appellate review of the portions of the magistrate judge's Report and Recommendation to which he or she did not object. In other words, a party's failure to object to one issue in a magistrate judge's Report and Recommendation precludes that party from subsequently raising that issue on appeal, even if objections are filed on other issues. Howard v. Secretary of HHS, 932 F.2d 505, 508-509, 1991 U.S. App. LEXIS® 8487 (6th Cir. 1991). See also Praylow v. Martin, 761 F.2d 179, 180 n. 1 (4th Cir.) (party precluded from raising on appeal factual issue to which it did not object in the district court), cert. denied, 474 U.S. 1009 (1985). In Howard, supra, the Court stated that general, non-specific objections are not sufficient:

A general objection to the entirety of the [magistrate judge's] report has the same effects as would a failure to object. The district court's attention is not focused on any specific issues for review, thereby making the initial reference to the [magistrate judge] useless.  This duplication of time and effort wastes judicial resources rather than saving them, and runs contrary to the purposes of the Magistrates Act. We would hardly countenance an appellant's brief simply objecting to the district court's determination without explaining the source of the error.

Accord Lockert v. Faulkner, 843 F.2d 1015, 1017-1019 (7th Cir. 1988), where the Court held that the appellant, who proceeded pro se in the district court, was barred from raising issues on appeal that he did not specifically raise in his objections to the district court:

Just as a complaint stating only 'I complain' states no claim, an objection stating only "I object" preserves no issue for review.  A district judge should not have to guess what arguments an objecting party depends on when reviewing a [magistrate judge's] report.
